On a couple of sheets of scratch paper, urge your child to practice drawing some mazes. It will help him to use a ruler or straight edge to make the maze as neat-looking as possible. If he needs some assistance, help him look online at some basic mazes, until he gets the idea. Have your child draw a different maze on each page of paper.

My daughter is only four but all the mazes she does are recommended for children aged seven to ten. She is certainly not doing aged seven to ten math or reading or anything else so I am suspicious of maze age recommendations. Anyway, in my opinion, these mazes are great for ages four to six. They are colorful and fun, but not too difficult.
